Foreword

This Handbook is published under the authority of DoD Instruction 7045.7, "Implementation of the Planning, Programming, and Budgeting System (PPBS)," May 23, 1984 (reference (a)). It contains the DoD program structure and the definition of each major program and program element approved by the Office of the Secretary of Defense. Also included are other related codes for the specific resources assigned to each element and an explanation of their use. This edition covers changes through FYDP Structure Coordination Document 98-01, January 1998.

In August 1996, the Deputy Secretary of Defense directed that responsibility for the FYDP be transferred from OUSD(C)(Program/Budget) to the office of the Director, Program Analysis and Evaluation (PA&E). The first FYDP produced by PA&E was the FY 1999-2001 POM FYDP (August 1997), and the second FYDP produced by PA&E was the FY 1999-2003 President's Budget FYDP (February 1998), for which this edition of DoD 7045.7-H is the current handbook. This edition of DoD 7045.7-H is the first major revision of the Handbook since PA&E assumed responsibility for its publication.

All previous editions of DoD 7045.7-H are hereby superceded.

This Handbook applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Military Departments, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Defense Agencies, Field Activities, and other Defensewide activities (hereafter referred to collectively as the "DoD Components").

This Handbook is effective immediately and is mandatory for use by all the DoD Components. Heads of the DoD Components may issue supplementary instructions only when necessary to provide for unique requirements within their Components.

Changes to the FYDP structure are coordinated through a primarily electronic process, in keeping with the recommendations of the Defense Reform Initiative, November, 1997 (reference (c)). Coordination is managed through the FYDP Structure Management Web Site on the Internet (http://fsm.ra.pae.osd.mil, restricted to .mil access). Portions of the Web site, including the portion for proposing changes to the FYDP structure, have additional access restrictions. The Web site contains an e-mail address for the PA&E staff point of contact for FSM, currently Dianne Falk, falkd@paesmtp.pae.osd.mil.

The primary means of publishing this document is electronic (Internet and CD-ROM). It is available on the FSM Web site, and arrangements are being made to place it on the Defenselink Web site. Copies of 7045.7-H are also included in CD-ROM publications of the FYDP itself (a classified CD-ROM).

Section One: Organization and Republication Policy for 7045.7-H

A. Organization

This Handbook lists the alphanumeric codes and titles of the two principal structural elements of the FYDP: Program Elements and Resource Identification Codes. The Handbook also contains definitions for FYDP program elements and the alphanumeric codes for the DoD Components that have resources in the FYDP; these Component codes are a subsidiary field in the program element codes. In addition, the Handbook states some of the major rules that guide the allocation of FYDP resources (primarily TOA and Manpower) to FYDP program elements.

B. Periodic Republication

DoD 7045.7-H will be revised and reissued periodically, typically three times per year with each update to the FYDP, as specified in DODI 7045.7, (reference (a)). Each year, the revision of DoD 7045.7-H for the new President's Budget FYDP will be circulated for public release. FYDP Structure Coordination Documents (which are approved and circulated monthly, and placed on the FSM Web site) may be used to supplement the most recent edition of DoD 7045.7-H with the latest approved changes to the FYDP's structure.

C. Proposing Revisions to the FYDP Structure

In accordance with DoD instruction 7045.7 (reference (a)), requests for changes to the FYDP's program structure, such as establishing new program element codes and definitions, or changing program element titles and definitions, shall be submitted to the OSD(PA&E) for coordination with the DoD Components. The primary instrument for submitting change requests is the FSM Web site, http://fsm.ra.pae.osd.mil. The FSM Web site has instructions for submitting properly formatted change requests and each DoD Component has a designated representative authorized to submit change requests.

Section Two: FYDP Structure Concepts and Rules

A. General Information about the FYDP's Structure

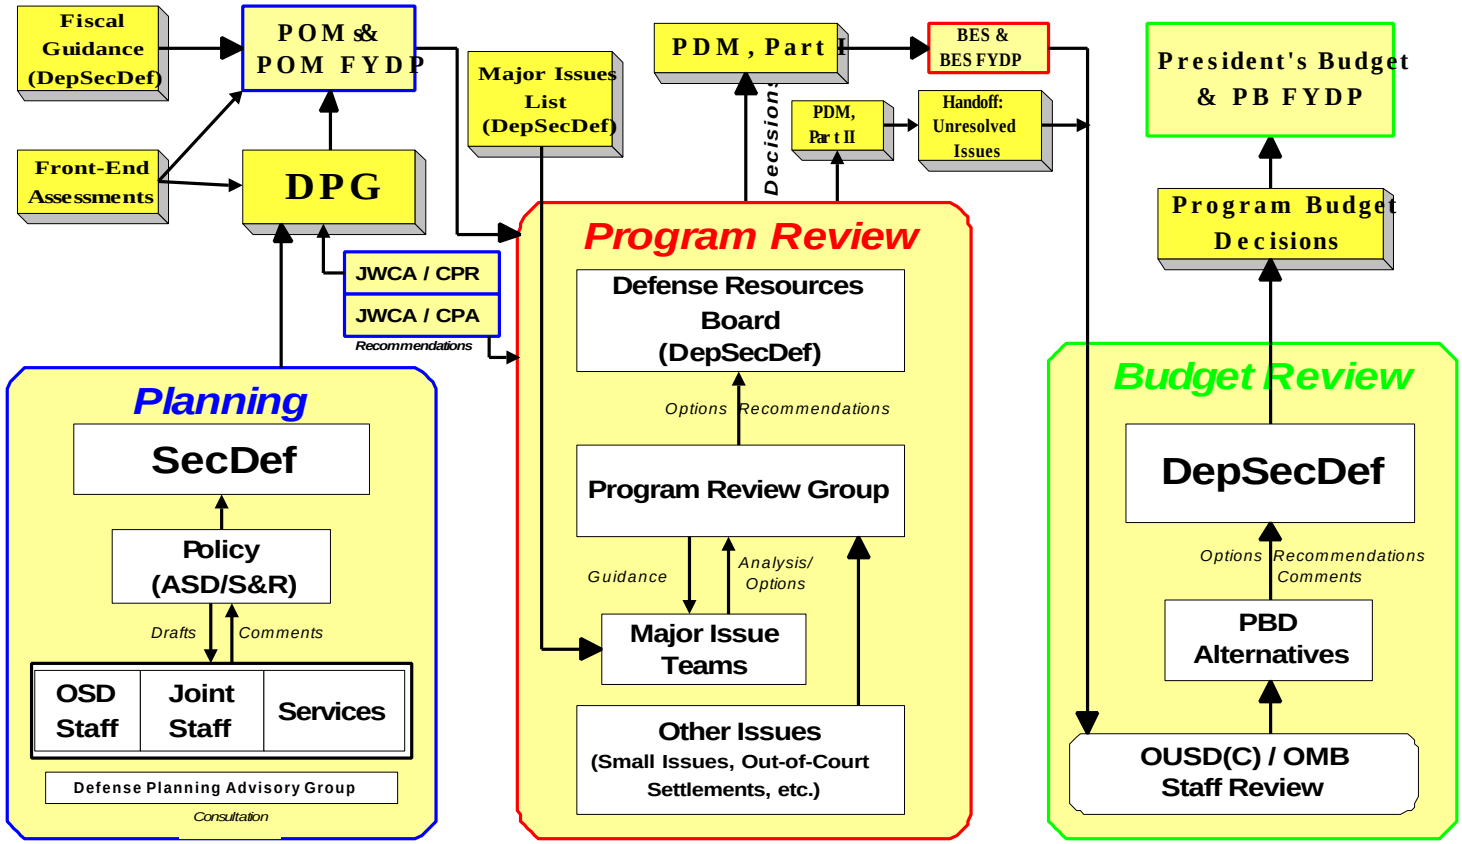
The FYDP is the official database that summarizes resources (TOA, personnel, and forces) associated, by fiscal year, with Department of Defense programs, as approved by the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary of Defense. The primary approval documents for these programs are: the Defense Planning Guidance (DPG), the Fiscal Guidance, the Program Decision Memorandum (PDM), and Program Budget Decisions (PBDs) (all internal DoD documents that are not available for public release).

The FYDP database contains prior year (PY), current year (CY), the two budget years (BYl and BY2) through BY2 + 4 years (BY2 +7 years for forces), and is usually updated three times per year, in accordance with DoDI 7045.7 (reference (a)). See (following page), a diagram that relates DoD's annual PPBS cycle to the three annual revisions of the FYDP. Historical FYDP data, containing prior years resource data consistent with the official accounting records for fiscal years 1962 through the latest prior year, is maintained. This Handbook contains both current and historical FYDP structural elements.

The FYDP was originally conceived as a two-dimensional matrix to "cross-walk" DoD resources from categories of resources to categories of programs. This Handbook is, essentially, a dictionary of these resource categories and program categories. In its first dimension, the FYDP comprises eleven major defense programs (six combat force-oriented programs and five support programs). These eleven major programs are divided into thousands of individual program elements (PEs). In its second dimension, the FYDP has three broad categories of resources: TOA (enumerating dollars (in thousands) appropriated by Congress to DoD), manpower (enumerating military endstrength and civilian full-time-equivalent workyears), and forces (either items of programmed equipment, or combat units). Generally, the FYDP's programs may be considered to be outputs, while its resources may be considered to be inputs. Hence, the FYDP cross-walks the Department's internal review structure (which is primarily output-oriented) with the congressional review structure (which specifies inputs to the Department).

The FYDP's programs produce DoD's "outputs." The Department's official record on DoD outputs (to satisfy the requirements of the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA)) is the Annual Report to the President and the Congress (reference (d)).

DoD PPBS Cycle and the FYDP



FYDP program elements are both comprehensive and mutually exclusive, and are continually scrutinized to maintain proper visibility of defense programs, as the programs themselves change, and as the Department's leadership requires new ways of examining DoD programs and resources. Since the FYDP is stored, and distributed, as a relational database, it is possible to create new aggregations of program elements and resource categories. Some of these aggregation schemes are maintained by OSD(PA&E) and may be seen in portions of the FSM Web site. However, this edition of DoD 7045.7-H does not include such aggregation schemes.

B. The FYDP's Structure for Resource Categories

Each resource recorded in the FYDP is attributable to a fiscal year, and falls into one of three broad categories: TOA (in effect: funds appropriated by Congress), manpower (military or civilian), or forces. These three broad resource categories are each subdivided into resource categories, and are enumerated by Resource Identification Codes (RICs), a 4-digit numeric code. The range of allowable RICs is 0000 to 9999.

Resource Identification Codes

Resource Identification Codes (RICs) identify the types of resources assigned to each program element. Each DoD Component submitting data to the DoD FYDP has been assigned codes for use in reporting such data in response to guidance for updating of the FYDP. There are three RIC categories:

- The Manpower Resource Identification Code (Manpower RIC) has an allowable range of 0000 to 0299. The Manpower RIC is used to identify officer, enlisted and civilian manpower in both the active and the guard and reserve establishments. Manpower RIC codes exist for cadets and ROTC enrollees, and for three types of DoD civilian employees: US direct hire, foreign direct hire, or foreign indirect hire.
- The Appropriation (TOA) Resource Identification Code (TOA RIC) has an allowable range of 0300 to 0999. The TOA RIC is used to identify appropriation accounts contained in the President's Budget. Most TOA RICs correspond 1-to-1 with standard U.S. appropriation symbols known as Treasury Codes. A few TOA RICs do not correspond to Treasury Codes; these are primarily for resource categories with TOA that is programmed only in years beyond the budget, such as contingency or planning "wedges." The OUSD(Comptroller) Program/Budget organization is the primary authority for assigning or naming TOA RICs.
- The Force Resource Identification Code (Force RIC) has an allowable range of 1000 to 9999. The Force RIC is used to identify specific hardware items, or weapon systems, by type and model, such as aircraft, missiles, ships, and specific force organizations such as divisions, brigades, battalions, and wings.

Proposed changes to the RIC structure must be coordinated through PA&E, as provided above on p. 2. The tables on the following pages assign the specific codes to be used by each DoD Component.

C. The FYDP's Structure for Program Categories

A program is an aggregation of program elements that reflects a force mission or a support mission of the Department of Defense and contains the resources needed to achieve an objective or plan. It reflects fiscal year time-phasing of mission objectives to be accomplished and the means proposed for their accomplishment.

1. FYDP Major Programs

The FYDP comprises the following eleven major programs:

Program 1 - Strategic Forces *
Program 2 - General Purpose Forces *
Program 3 - Command, Control, Communications, Intelligence and Space *
Program 4 - Mobility Forces *
Program 5 - Guard and Reserve Forces *
Program 6 - Research and Development
Program 7 - Central Supply and Maintenance
Program 8 - Training, Medical, and Other General Personnel Activities
Program 9 - Administration and Associated Activities
Program 10 - Support of Other Nations
Program 11 - Special Operations Forces *
*Combat Forces Program

These eleven major programs are, in turn, divided into numerous FYDP program elements.

The responsibility for assigning FYDP resources to FYDP programs rests with the Component to which the resources are assigned. Oversight for assignment of FYDP resources to the major programs of the FYDP, and for the structure of program elements within each major program, falls within the general organizational areas of responsibility of certain Principal Staff Assistants to the Secretary of Defense, as indicated below. However, since resources in these programs may overlap areas of management and functional responsibility, the programs are not considered to be the exclusive responsibility of any one particular organizational element of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

- Program 1 - Strategic Forces. Offices of Primary Responsibility (OPRs): Under Secretary of Defense (Acquisition and Technology) (USD(A&T)), Under Secretary of Defense (Policy) (USD(P)); Director, Program Analysis and Evaluation (PA&E). Strategic forces are those organizations and associated weapon systems whose force missions encompass intercontinental or transoceanic inter-theater responsibilities. Program 1 is further subdivided into strategic offensive forces and strategic defensive forces, including operational management headquarters, logistics, and support organizations identifiable and associated with these major subdivisions.
- Program 2 - General Purpose Forces. OPRs: USD(A&T), PA&E. General purpose forces are those organizations and associated weapon systems whose force mission responsibilities are, at a given point in time, limited to one theater of operation. Program 2 comprises force-oriented program elements, including the command organizations associated with these forces, the logistic organizations organic to these forces, and the related support units that are deployed or deployable as constituent parts of military forces and field organizations. Also included are other programs, such as JCS-directed and coordinated exercises, Coast Guard ship support program, war reserve material, ammunition, and equipment.
- Program 3 - Command, Control, Communications, Intelligence and Space. OPRs: USD(A&T), USD(P); Assistant Secretary of Defense (Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence) (ASD(C3I)). Comprises intelligence, security, communications and functions, such as mapping, charting, and geodesy activities, weather service, oceanography, special activities, nuclear weapons operations, space boosters, satellite control and aerial targets. Intelligence and communications functions that are specifically identifiable to a mission in the other major programs shall be included within the appropriate program.
- Program 4 - Mobility Forces. OPRs: USD(A&T), PA&E. Comprises airlift, sealift, traffic management, and water terminal activities, both direct-funded and through the Defense Business Operations Revolving Fund, including command, logistics, and support units organic to these organizations.
- Program 5 - Guard and Reserve Forces. OPRs: Assistant Secretary of Defense (Reserve Affairs) (ASD(RA)), PA&E. The majority of Program 5 resources consist of Guard and Reserve training units in support of strategic offensive and defensive forces and general purpose forces. There are also units that support intelligence and communications; space; airlift and sealift; research and development; central supply and maintenance; training, medical, general personnel activities, administration, and assistance to other nations. The Congress requires that FYDP Guard and Reserve Forces resources be consistent with the President's Budget resources for those activities.
- Program 6 - Research and Development. OPR: USD(A&T). Comprises all research and development programs and activities that have not yet been approved for operational use, and includes:

(a) Basic and applied research tasks and projects of potential military application in the physical, mathematical, environmental, engineering, biomedical, and behavioral sciences.

(b) Development, test, and evaluation of new weapons systems equipment and related programs.

- Program 7 - Central Supply and Maintenance. OPRs: USD(A&T), Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness) (USD(P&R)). Comprises resources related to supply, maintenance, and service activities, both direct-funded and through the Defense Business Operations Revolving Fund, such as first and second destination transportation, overseas port units, industrial preparedness, commissaries, logistics and maintenance support, depot maintenance and supply management. These functions or activities, which are usually centrally managed, provide benefits and support necessary to fulfil DoD programs.
- Program 8 - Training, Medical, and Other General Personnel Activities. OPRs: Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health Affairs) (ASD(HA)); USD(P&R). Comprises resources related to training and education, personnel procurement services, health care, permanent change of station travel, transients, family housing, and other support activities associated with personnel. Excluded from this program is training specifically related to and identified with another major organic program. Housing subsistence, health care, recreation, and similar costs and resources that are organic to a program element, such as base operations in other major programs, are also excluded from this program. Program 8 functions and activities, which are mainly centrally managed, provide benefits and support necessary to fulfil DoD programs.
- Program 9 - Administration and Associated Activities. OPR: USD(C). Comprises resources for the administrative support of departmental and major administrative headquarters, field commands, and administration and associated activities not accounted for elsewhere. Included are activities such as construction planning and design, public affairs, contingencies, claims, and criminal investigations.
- Program 10 - Support of Other Nations. OPRs: USD(P); Assistant Secretary of Defense (International Security Affairs) (ASD(ISA)). Comprises resources in support of international activities, including support to the Military Assistance Program (MAP), foreign military sales, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) infrastructure, and humanitarian assistance.
- Program 11 - Special Operations Forces. OPR: Assistant Secretary of Defense (Special Operations/Low Intensity Conflict) (ASD(SO/LIC)). Comprises force-oriented special operations forces (Active, Guard and Reserve), including the command organizations and support units directly related to these forces.

2. FYDP Program Elements

A program element is a primary data element in the FYDP and generally represents aggregations of organizational entities and resources related thereto. Program elements represent descriptions of the various missions of the Department of Defense. They are the building blocks of the programming and budgeting system and may be aggregated and reaggregated in a variety of ways:

a. To display total resources assigned to a specific program,
b. To display weapon systems and support systems within a program,
c. To select specified resources,
d. In logical groupings for analytical purposes, or
e. To identify selected functional groupings of resources.

The program element concept allows the operating manager to participate in the programming decision process since both the inputs and outputs shall be stated and measured in program element terms. Each program element may or may not consist of forces, manpower, and dollars, depending on the definition of the element.

Some examples of program element coding symbology that have been retained through the many structure changes are:

a. The program element code is ten alphanumeric positions long.
b. Positions 1 and 2 of the code are numeric and identify the major program (allowable range is 01-11).
c. Positions 3 and 4 of the code are numeric have special uses in certain FYDP Major Programs.
d. Positions 5, 6, and 7 of the code are numeric.
e. Positions 8, 9, and 10 of the code are alphanumeric, and identify the DoD Component responsible for programming the resources, and to which the element is assigned (i.e., A. F, DS, DBE).

f. For Program 5 elements, positions 3 and 4 identify the major active force program to which it relates.
g. For Program 6 elements, positions 3 and 4 identify a specific R&D category, as follows:
   - (01) Research. Includes all effort of scientific study and experimentation directed toward increasing knowledge and understanding in those fields of the physical, engineering, environmental, and life sciences related to long-term national security needs. It provides farsighted, high payoff research, including critical enabling technologies that provide the basis for technological progress. It forms a part of the base for (a) subsequent exploratory and advanced developments in Defense-related technologies, and (b) new and improved military functional capabilities in areas such as communications, detection, tracking, surveillance, propulsion, mobility, guidance and control, navigation, energy conversion, materials and structures, and personnel support. Program elements in this category would involve pre-Milestone Zero efforts.

- (02) Exploratory Development. This activity translates promising basic research into solutions for broadly defined military needs, short of major development projects. This type of effort may vary from fairly fundamental applied research to sophisticated hardware, study, programming and planning efforts that establish the initial feasibility and practicality of proposed solutions to technological challenges. It includes studies, investigations, and non-system specific development efforts. The dominant characteristic of this category of effort is that it be pointed toward specific military needs with a view toward developing and evaluating the feasibility and practicability of proposed solutions and determining their parameters. Exploratory Development precedes the system specific research described in DODD 5000.1. Program control of the Exploratory Development element will normally be exercised by a general level of effort. Program Elements in this category would involve pre-Milestone Zero efforts.

- (03) Advanced Development. Includes all efforts that have moved into the development and integration of hardware for field experiments and tests. The results of this type rather than the development of hardware for service use. Projects in this category have a direct relevance to identified military needs. Advanced Development is system specific (particularly for major platforms; i.e., aircraft, ships, missiles and tanks, etc.) and includes advanced technology development which is used to demonstrate the general military utility or cost reduction potential of technology when applied to different types of military equipment or techniques. Advanced Development also includes evaluation and synthetic environment and proof-of-principle demonstrations in field exercises to evaluate system upgrades or provide new operational capabilities. Program Elements in this category would involve pre-Milestone One efforts. Projects in this category do not necessarily have to lead to subsequent development or procurement phases, however, program/budget justification must identify potential rough order of magnitude estimates of additional development and production costs consistent with the Department's full funding policy. Program elements with a code lower than 0603850 are usually Advanced Development.

- (03) Demonstration/Validation. The demonstration and validation (Dem/Val) phase, includes all efforts necessary to evaluate integrated technologies in as realistic an operating environment as possible to assess the performance or cost reduction potential of advanced technology. The Dem/Val phase is system specific and also includes advanced technology demonstrations that help expedite technology transition from the laboratory to operational use. Program Elements in this category would involve efforts between Milestone One and Milestone Two. A logical progression of program phases and funding (development and/or production) must be evident. Program elements with a code ranging from 0603850 to 0603999 are usually Demonstration/Validation.

- (04)Engineering Development. Includes those projects in engineering and manufacturing development for Service use but which have not received approval for full-rate production. This area is characterized by major line item projects and program control will be exercised by the review of individual projects. Engineering Development includes engineering and manufacturing development projects. Program Elements in this category would involve efforts between Milestone Two and Milestone Three.
- (05) Management and Support. Includes research and development effort directed toward support of installations or operations required for general research and development use. Included would be test ranges, and military construction maintenance support of laboratories, operations and maintenance of test aircraft and ships and studies and analyses in support of the R&D program. Costs of laboratory personnel, either in house or contractor operated, would be assigned to appropriate projects or as a line item in the Research, Exploratory Development, or Advanced Development program areas, as appropriate. Military construction costs directly related to a major development program will be included in the appropriate element.

D. Relationships between FYDP Resources and FYDP Programs

Several rules regulate the manner in which FYDP resources are allocated to FYDP programs.

The fundamental rules are: 1) Every FYDP resource must be assigned uniquely to one FYDP program element. 2) The sum of a resource type over all FYDP program elements, for a given fiscal year, must equal the total of that type of FYDP resources in the DoD program for that fiscal year. "Control totals," especially for types of TOA and manpower resources, established externally to the FYDP, must be satisfied by the published FYDP database. In particular, the U.S. Congress requires that the published President's Budget FYDP be consistent with the concurrent DoD President's Budget.

The responsibility for assigning FYDP resources to FYDP programs rests with the Component to which the resources are assigned. The Department's aggregate TOA and manpower resources are regulated by the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and the office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness), respectively. It is these offices that determine their categories, their control totals, and other key factors. The FYDP structure management process is used to keep FYDP resource categories consistent with OUSD(C) and OUSD(P&R) policies.

Within the FYDP itself, certain interrelationships must be followed between resources and programs. By major resource category, these relationships are:

1. TOA Relationships to FYDP Programs (by Major Appropriation)

Military Personnel (MilPers)

TOA resources in the MilPers budget title are to be applied to program elements, according to standard average costs for pay and other expenses, by military manpower category, pro rata to the number of personnel of that type in each program element. [As of the February 1998 President's Budget FYDP, the MilPers resources in each program element are calculated in various ways by the Military Departments (and by other DoD Components who receive military personnel as resources for their programs). Efforts are underway to simplify and standardize the allocation of MilPers TOA to FYDP Program Elements.]

Operation and Maintenance (O&M)

Several methodologies are used to allocate O&M TOA resources to program elements.

- Force-related O&M TOA is to be applied according to workload requirements (such as flying or steaming hours or schedules) of force units within each program element.

- O&M TOA for reserve components are assigned to those known requirements in specific program elements and the balance is applied according to manpower end strengths.
- Supply and maintenance O&M TOA is usually identified according to a number of workload measures and programmed equipment utilization rates.
- In the Navy, O&M TOA for aircraft rework is handled differently from that for ship overhaul. Most of the Navy's centrally managed maintenance TOA is identified in Program 7. Aircraft rework falls in this category. Ship overhaul and other maintenance, on the other hand, is managed by the fleet commanders and are therefore in Programs 1 and 2.
- Training O&M TOA, in Program 8, is based on training load requirements for projected mission needs. Unit training O&M TOA of the major mission programs is identified by force requirements.
- Medical O&M TOA is allocated to medical program elements in Program 8, based on a medical workload factor.

Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation (RDT&E)

R&D project costs are recorded in the OUSD(Comptroller)(Program/Budget) RDT&E Program, a budget information system (formerly called the RDT&E Annex (to the FYDP)). In general, RDT&E resources in the FYDP conform to the RDT&E Program. RDT&E TOA normally aggregates directly into individually managed program elements; however, certain overhead costs may be spread across all projects when they cannot be related directly to a specific project, or accumulated in management and support program elements.

Procurement

Procurement TOA costs are recorded in the OUSD(Comptroller)(Program/Budget) Procurement Program, a budget information system (formerly called the Procurement Annex (to the FYDP)). Procurement TOA is allocated to program elements by one of the following methods:

- Procurement line items representing major weapon systems are directly associated with the appropriate program element or elements in accordance with the mission or missions assigned to the weapon system. Unit-related items are associated with program elements according to algorithms that identify units, their relative wartime deployment priority, the equipment authorizations for each unit, the worldwide asset position for equipment items, projected loss rates and the authorized acquisition objective for those items. A mathematical distribution is made to the program element based on these factors.
- Some items are based on historical distribution of identical or similar items being replaced.

- Some support Procurement TOA, such as procurement of automobiles and some utility aircraft, is allocated to base operations program elements in accordance with type and size of mission being supported.
- In some cases, particularly in the Navy, summary program elements are used to accumulate procurement TOA to avoid an arbitrary allocation.

Military Construction

When a construction project is identified, the FYDP major program of the dominant user is determined. As the project moves through the review and approval process, a specific program element is determined and assigned.

2. Manpower Relationships to FYDP Programs

Military Manpower.

Military manpower is enumerated in end strength, as of the end of the fiscal year for which resources are recorded in the FYDP. End strengths are normally aggregated directly into program elements based on the program element identification of each unit. Unstructured spaces (trainees, transients, patients, prisoners, and students) are computed based on anticipated gains and losses and authorizations for units in all FYDP programs.

Civilian Manpower

Civilian manpower is enumerated in the FYDP, for FY 1996 and afterward, in workyears of Full Time Equivalent (FTE) employees. The OUSD(P&R) is the authority for defining and measuring FTE in the Department of Defense. Civilian manpower is aggregated directly into program elements based on unit/program element relationships.

3. Forces Relationships to FYDP Programs

With few exceptions, Forces data for the FYDP is restricted to program elements in the six FYDP Major Programs for combat forces. The allowable exceptions include equipment (such as specialized aircraft) for certain support missions such as medical programs (medical evacuation aircraft) and training programs (undergraduate pilot training aircraft).

Section Three: Use of the FYDP

DoD Instruction 7045.7 requires that decisions from the Planning, Programming, and Budgeting System process be recorded in the FYDP. The FYDP is used extensively as a database for many related processes, both internal and external to the Department of Defense. Within the Department, the FYDP supports PPBS activities, is an operating tool of the DoD manager, and is a source of data for analysis and as an input to alternative ways of displaying and portraying actual and programmed resources. External DoD uses of the FYDP include analyses supporting the Secretary's Annual Report to the Congress.

Although the data structure (also known as the "metadata") of the FYDP is unclassified and is authorized for public release, the FYDP data itself are classified and the FYDP's use is tightly restricted. The main considerations are:

- Data in the FYDP generally is considered to be DoD Planning, Programming, and Budgeting System (PPBS) information, and is internal working material of the Department. As such, this information is subject to restrictions regardless of its security classification. Non-DoD personnel must get individual clearance to obtain access to FYDP or to other PPBS data. FYDP out-year program data, in particular, reflect DoD's internal planning assumptions. FYDP data beyond the budget year is not releasable outside DoD without the express written consent of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), or as specifically provided by US law. The PA&E POC for questions about access to the FYDP is Jane Overslaugh, (703) 693-7827, DSN 223-7827, overslaj@paesmtp.pae.osd.mil.

- Resources of special programs recorded in the FYDP (such as intelligence programs), and certain resource aggregations containing special programs' resources, are classified when published and remain classified for an extended period. This applies to previous editions of the FYDP, and to FYDP data for fiscal years that have long since passed. For some programs, the FYDP resource data for FY 1962 (the first year of data recorded in the FYDP) are still classified! The FYDP does not currently have data-record-level classification information. Therefore, all FYDP data and FYDP data aggregations (other than a few high-level aggregations prepared by OSD(PA&E) in advance as unclassified) must be treated as classified until determined otherwise. The PA&E POC for questions about FYDP data classification is Jerry Pannullo, (703) 693-7827, DSN 223-7827, pannullo@paesmtp.pae.osd.mil.

By statutory requirement, the President's Budget publication of: the FYDP, the OUSD(Comptroller) Procurement Program, and the OUSD(Comptroller) RDT&E Program, all containing the prior, current, and four out-years, are provided to various Congressional oversight committee staffs and the Congressional Budget Office (CBO). The CBO has developed a Defense Resource Model (DRM) for use as an analytical tool in support of alternative levels of defense resources. Following the budget submission to Congress, budget year data are extracted from the FYDP according to CBO specifications, which aggregate program elements and resource identification codes to unclassified summary levels for input to the DRM. Data from the DRM are used by CBO to fulfill the legal requirement for mission-oriented displays under P.L. 93-344 (reference (b)).

Foreword

This Handbook is published under the authority of DoD Instruction 7045.7, "Implementation of the Planning, Programming, and Budgeting System (PPBS)," May 23, 1984 (reference (a)). It contains the DoD program structure and the definition of each major program and program element approved by the Office of the Secretary of Defense. Also included are other related codes for the specific resources assigned to each element and an explanation of their use. This edition covers changes through FYDP Structure Coordination Document 98-01, January 1998.

In August 1996, the Deputy Secretary of Defense directed that responsibility for the FYDP be transferred from OUSD(C)(Program/Budget) to the office of the Director, Program Analysis and Evaluation (PA&E). The first FYDP produced by PA&E was the FY 1999-2001 POM FYDP (August 1997), and the second FYDP produced by PA&E was the FY 1999-2003 President's Budget FYDP (February 1998), for which this edition of DoD 7045.7-H is the current handbook. This edition of DoD 7045.7-H is the first major revision of the Handbook since PA&E assumed responsibility for its publication.

All previous editions of DoD 7045.7-H are hereby superceded.

This Handbook applies to the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Military Departments, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Defense Agencies, Field Activities, and other Defensewide activities (hereafter referred to collectively as the "DoD Components").

This Handbook is effective immediately and is mandatory for use by all the DoD Components. Heads of the DoD Components may issue supplementary instructions only when necessary to provide for unique requirements within their Components.

Changes to the FYDP structure are coordinated through a primarily electronic process, in keeping with the recommendations of the Defense Reform Initiative, November, 1997 (reference (c)). Coordination is managed through the FYDP Structure Management Web Site on the Internet (http://fsm.ra.pae.osd.mil, restricted to .mil access). Portions of the Web site, including the portion for proposing changes to the FYDP structure, have additional access restrictions. The Web site contains an e-mail address for the PA&E staff point of contact for FSM, currently Dianne Falk, falkd@paesmtp.pae.osd.mil.

The primary means of publishing this document is electronic (Internet and CD-ROM). It is available on the FSM Web site, and arrangements are being made to place it on the Defenselink Web site. Copies of 7045.7-H are also included in CD-ROM publications of the FYDP itself (a classified CD-ROM).

Section One: Organization and Republication Policy for 7045.7-H

A. Organization

This Handbook lists the alphanumeric codes and titles of the two principal structural elements of the FYDP: Program Elements and Resource Identification Codes. The Handbook also contains definitions for FYDP program elements and the alphanumeric codes for the DoD Components that have resources in the FYDP; these Component codes are a subsidiary field in the program element codes. In addition, the Handbook states some of the major rules that guide the allocation of FYDP resources (primarily TOA and Manpower) to FYDP program elements.

B. Periodic Republication

DoD 7045.7-H will be revised and reissued periodically, typically three times per year with each update to the FYDP, as specified in DODI 7045.7, (reference (a)). Each year, the revision of DoD 7045.7-H for the new President's Budget FYDP will be circulated for public release. FYDP Structure Coordination Documents (which are approved and circulated monthly, and placed on the FSM Web site) may be used to supplement the most recent edition of DoD 7045.7-H with the latest approved changes to the FYDP's structure.

C. Proposing Revisions to the FYDP Structure

In accordance with DoD instruction 7045.7 (reference (a)), requests for changes to the FYDP's program structure, such as establishing new program element codes and definitions, or changing program element titles and definitions, shall be submitted to the OSD(PA&E) for coordination with the DoD Components. The primary instrument for submitting change requests is the FSM Web site, http://fsm.ra.pae.osd.mil. The FSM Web site has instructions for submitting properly formatted change requests and each DoD Component has a designated representative authorized to submit change requests.

Section Two: FYDP Structure Concepts and Rules

A. General Information about the FYDP's Structure

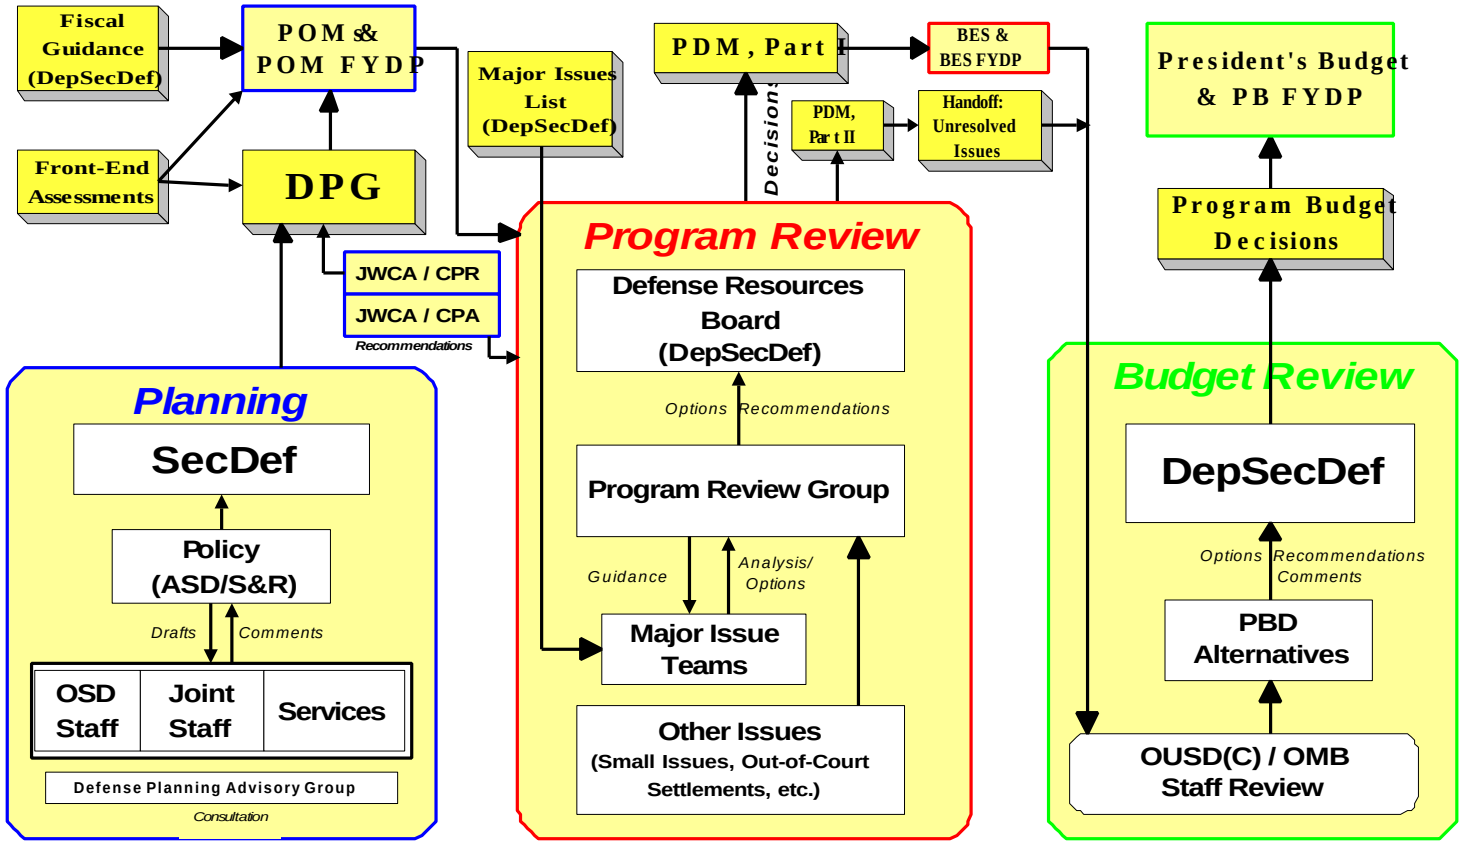
The FYDP is the official database that summarizes resources (TOA, personnel, and forces) associated, by fiscal year, with Department of Defense programs, as approved by the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary of Defense. The primary approval documents for these programs are: the Defense Planning Guidance (DPG), the Fiscal Guidance, the Program Decision Memorandum (PDM), and Program Budget Decisions (PBDs) (all internal DoD documents that are not available for public release).

The FYDP database contains prior year (PY), current year (CY), the two budget years (BYl and BY2) through BY2 + 4 years (BY2 +7 years for forces), and is usually updated three times per year, in accordance with DoDI 7045.7 (reference (a)). See (following page), a diagram that relates DoD's annual PPBS cycle to the three annual revisions of the FYDP. Historical FYDP data, containing prior years resource data consistent with the official accounting records for fiscal years 1962 through the latest prior year, is maintained. This Handbook contains both current and historical FYDP structural elements.

The FYDP was originally conceived as a two-dimensional matrix to "cross-walk" DoD resources from categories of resources to categories of programs. This Handbook is, essentially, a dictionary of these resource categories and program categories. In its first dimension, the FYDP comprises eleven major defense programs (six combat force-oriented programs and five support programs). These eleven major programs are divided into thousands of individual program elements (PEs). In its second dimension, the FYDP has three broad categories of resources: TOA (enumerating dollars (in thousands) appropriated by Congress to DoD), manpower (enumerating military endstrength and civilian full-time-equivalent workyears), and forces (either items of programmed equipment, or combat units). Generally, the FYDP's programs may be considered to be outputs, while its resources may be considered to be inputs. Hence, the FYDP cross-walks the Department's internal review structure (which is primarily output-oriented) with the congressional review structure (which specifies inputs to the Department).

The FYDP's programs produce DoD's "outputs." The Department's official record on DoD outputs (to satisfy the requirements of the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA)) is the Annual Report to the President and the Congress (reference (d)).

DoD PPBS Cycle and the FYDP



FYDP program elements are both comprehensive and mutually exclusive, and are continually scrutinized to maintain proper visibility of defense programs, as the programs themselves change, and as the Department's leadership requires new ways of examining DoD programs and resources. Since the FYDP is stored, and distributed, as a relational database, it is possible to create new aggregations of program elements and resource categories. Some of these aggregation schemes are maintained by OSD(PA&E) and may be seen in portions of the FSM Web site. However, this edition of DoD 7045.7-H does not include such aggregation schemes.

B. The FYDP's Structure for Resource Categories

Each resource recorded in the FYDP is attributable to a fiscal year, and falls into one of three broad categories: TOA (in effect: funds appropriated by Congress), manpower (military or civilian), or forces. These three broad resource categories are each subdivided into resource categories, and are enumerated by Resource Identification Codes (RICs), a 4-digit numeric code. The range of allowable RICs is 0000 to 9999.

Resource Identification Codes

Resource Identification Codes (RICs) identify the types of resources assigned to each program element. Each DoD Component submitting data to the DoD FYDP has been assigned codes for use in reporting such data in response to guidance for updating of the FYDP. There are three RIC categories:

- The Manpower Resource Identification Code (Manpower RIC) has an allowable range of 0000 to 0299. The Manpower RIC is used to identify officer, enlisted and civilian manpower in both the active and the guard and reserve establishments. Manpower RIC codes exist for cadets and ROTC enrollees, and for three types of DoD civilian employees: US direct hire, foreign direct hire, or foreign indirect hire.
- The Appropriation (TOA) Resource Identification Code (TOA RIC) has an allowable range of 0300 to 0999. The TOA RIC is used to identify appropriation accounts contained in the President's Budget. Most TOA RICs correspond 1-to-1 with standard U.S. appropriation symbols known as Treasury Codes. A few TOA RICs do not correspond to Treasury Codes; these are primarily for resource categories with TOA that is programmed only in years beyond the budget, such as contingency or planning "wedges." The OUSD(Comptroller) Program/Budget organization is the primary authority for assigning or naming TOA RICs.
- The Force Resource Identification Code (Force RIC) has an allowable range of 1000 to 9999. The Force RIC is used to identify specific hardware items, or weapon systems, by type and model, such as aircraft, missiles, ships, and specific force organizations such as divisions, brigades, battalions, and wings.

Proposed changes to the RIC structure must be coordinated through PA&E, as provided above on p. 2. The tables on the following pages assign the specific codes to be used by each DoD Component.

C. The FYDP's Structure for Program Categories

A program is an aggregation of program elements that reflects a force mission or a support mission of the Department of Defense and contains the resources needed to achieve an objective or plan. It reflects fiscal year time-phasing of mission objectives to be accomplished and the means proposed for their accomplishment.

1. FYDP Major Programs

The FYDP comprises the following eleven major programs:

Program 1 - Strategic Forces *
Program 2 - General Purpose Forces *
Program 3 - Command, Control, Communications, Intelligence and Space *
Program 4 - Mobility Forces *
Program 5 - Guard and Reserve Forces *
Program 6 - Research and Development
Program 7 - Central Supply and Maintenance
Program 8 - Training, Medical, and Other General Personnel Activities
Program 9 - Administration and Associated Activities
Program 10 - Support of Other Nations
Program 11 - Special Operations Forces *
*Combat Forces Program

These eleven major programs are, in turn, divided into numerous FYDP program elements.

The responsibility for assigning FYDP resources to FYDP programs rests with the Component to which the resources are assigned. Oversight for assignment of FYDP resources to the major programs of the FYDP, and for the structure of program elements within each major program, falls within the general organizational areas of responsibility of certain Principal Staff Assistants to the Secretary of Defense, as indicated below. However, since resources in these programs may overlap areas of management and functional responsibility, the programs are not considered to be the exclusive responsibility of any one particular organizational element of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

- Program 1 - Strategic Forces. Offices of Primary Responsibility (OPRs): Under Secretary of Defense (Acquisition and Technology) (USD(A&T)), Under Secretary of Defense (Policy) (USD(P)); Director, Program Analysis and Evaluation (PA&E). Strategic forces are those organizations and associated weapon systems whose force missions encompass intercontinental or transoceanic inter-theater responsibilities. Program 1 is further subdivided into strategic offensive forces and strategic defensive forces, including operational management headquarters, logistics, and support organizations identifiable and associated with these major subdivisions.
- Program 2 - General Purpose Forces. OPRs: USD(A&T), PA&E. General purpose forces are those organizations and associated weapon systems whose force mission responsibilities are, at a given point in time, limited to one theater of operation. Program 2 comprises force-oriented program elements, including the command organizations associated with these forces, the logistic organizations organic to these forces, and the related support units that are deployed or deployable as constituent parts of military forces and field organizations. Also included are other programs, such as JCS-directed and coordinated exercises, Coast Guard ship support program, war reserve material, ammunition, and equipment.
- Program 3 - Command, Control, Communications, Intelligence and Space. OPRs: USD(A&T), USD(P); Assistant Secretary of Defense (Command, Control, Communications and Intelligence) (ASD(C3I)). Comprises intelligence, security, communications and functions, such as mapping, charting, and geodesy activities, weather service, oceanography, special activities, nuclear weapons operations, space boosters, satellite control and aerial targets. Intelligence and communications functions that are specifically identifiable to a mission in the other major programs shall be included within the appropriate program.
- Program 4 - Mobility Forces. OPRs: USD(A&T), PA&E. Comprises airlift, sealift, traffic management, and water terminal activities, both direct-funded and through the Defense Business Operations Revolving Fund, including command, logistics, and support units organic to these organizations.
- Program 5 - Guard and Reserve Forces. OPRs: Assistant Secretary of Defense (Reserve Affairs) (ASD(RA)), PA&E. The majority of Program 5 resources consist of Guard and Reserve training units in support of strategic offensive and defensive forces and general purpose forces. There are also units that support intelligence and communications; space; airlift and sealift; research and development; central supply and maintenance; training, medical, general personnel activities, administration, and assistance to other nations. The Congress requires that FYDP Guard and Reserve Forces resources be consistent with the President's Budget resources for those activities.
- Program 6 - Research and Development. OPR: USD(A&T). Comprises all research and development programs and activities that have not yet been approved for operational use, and includes:

(a) Basic and applied research tasks and projects of potential military application in the physical, mathematical, environmental, engineering, biomedical, and behavioral sciences.

- Program 7 - Central Supply and Maintenance. OPRs: USD(A&T), Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness) (USD(P&R)). Comprises resources related to supply, maintenance, and service activities, both direct-funded and through the Defense Business Operations Revolving Fund, such as first and second destination transportation, overseas port units, industrial preparedness, commissaries, logistics and maintenance support, depot maintenance and supply management. These functions or activities, which are usually centrally managed, provide benefits and support necessary to fulfil DoD programs.
- Program 8 - Training, Medical, and Other General Personnel Activities. OPRs: Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health Affairs) (ASD(HA)); USD(P&R). Comprises resources related to training and education, personnel procurement services, health care, permanent change of station travel, transients, family housing, and other support activities associated with personnel. Excluded from this program is training specifically related to and identified with another major organic program. Housing subsistence, health care, recreation, and similar costs and resources that are organic to a program element, such as base operations in other major programs, are also excluded from this program. Program 8 functions and activities, which are mainly centrally managed, provide benefits and support necessary to fulfil DoD programs.
- Program 9 - Administration and Associated Activities. OPR: USD(C). Comprises resources for the administrative support of departmental and major administrative headquarters, field commands, and administration and associated activities not accounted for elsewhere. Included are activities such as construction planning and design, public affairs, contingencies, claims, and criminal investigations.
- Program 10 - Support of Other Nations. OPRs: USD(P); Assistant Secretary of Defense (International Security Affairs) (ASD(ISA)). Comprises resources in support of international activities, including support to the Military Assistance Program (MAP), foreign military sales, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) infrastructure, and humanitarian assistance.
- Program 11 - Special Operations Forces. OPR: Assistant Secretary of Defense (Special Operations/Low Intensity Conflict) (ASD(SO/LIC)). Comprises force-oriented special operations forces (Active, Guard and Reserve), including the command organizations and support units directly related to these forces.

2. FYDP Program Elements

A program element is a primary data element in the FYDP and generally represents aggregations of organizational entities and resources related thereto. Program elements represent descriptions of the various missions of the Department of Defense. They are the building blocks of the programming and budgeting system and may be aggregated and reaggregated in a variety of ways:

a. To display total resources assigned to a specific program,
b. To display weapon systems and support systems within a program,
c. To select specified resources,
e. To identify selected functional groupings of resources.

The program element concept allows the operating manager to participate in the programming decision process since both the inputs and outputs shall be stated and measured in program element terms. Each program element may or may not consist of forces, manpower, and dollars, depending on the definition of the element.

Some examples of program element coding symbology that have been retained through the many structure changes are:

a. The program element code is ten alphanumeric positions long.
b. Positions 1 and 2 of the code are numeric and identify the major program (allowable range is 01-11).
c. Positions 3 and 4 of the code are numeric have special uses in certain FYDP Major Programs.
d. Positions 5, 6, and 7 of the code are numeric.
e. Positions 8, 9, and 10 of the code are alphanumeric, and identify the DoD Component responsible for programming the resources, and to which the element is assigned (i.e., A. F, DS, DBE).

f. For Program 5 elements, positions 3 and 4 identify the major active force program to which it relates.
g. For Program 6 elements, positions 3 and 4 identify a specific R&D category, as follows:
   - (01) Research. Includes all effort of scientific study and experimentation directed toward increasing knowledge and understanding in those fields of the physical, engineering, environmental, and life sciences related to long-term national security needs. It provides farsighted, high payoff research, including critical enabling technologies that provide the basis for technological progress. It forms a part of the base for (a) subsequent exploratory and advanced developments in Defense-related technologies, and (b) new and improved military functional capabilities in areas such as communications, detection, tracking, surveillance, propulsion, mobility, guidance and control, navigation, energy conversion, materials and structures, and personnel support. Program elements in this category would involve pre-Milestone Zero efforts.

- (02) Exploratory Development. This activity translates promising basic research into solutions for broadly defined military needs, short of major development projects. This type of effort may vary from fairly fundamental applied research to sophisticated hardware, study, programming and planning efforts that establish the initial feasibility and practicality of proposed solutions to technological challenges. It includes studies, investigations, and non-system specific development efforts. The dominant characteristic of this category of effort is that it be pointed toward specific military needs with a view toward developing and evaluating the feasibility and practicability of proposed solutions and determining their parameters. Exploratory Development precedes the system specific research described in DODD 5000.1. Program control of the Exploratory Development element will normally be exercised by a general level of effort. Program Elements in this category would involve pre-Milestone Zero efforts.

- (03) Advanced Development. Includes all efforts that have moved into the development and integration of hardware for field experiments and tests. The results of this type rather than the development of hardware for service use. Projects in this category have a direct relevance to identified military needs. Advanced Development is system specific (particularly for major platforms; i.e., aircraft, ships, missiles and tanks, etc.) and includes advanced technology development which is used to demonstrate the general military utility or cost reduction potential of technology when applied to different types of military equipment or techniques. Advanced Development also includes evaluation and synthetic environment and proof-of-principle demonstrations in field exercises to evaluate system upgrades or provide new operational capabilities. Program Elements in this category would involve pre-Milestone One efforts. Projects in this category do not necessarily have to lead to subsequent development or procurement phases, however, program/budget justification must identify potential rough order of magnitude estimates of additional development and production costs consistent with the Department's full funding policy. Program elements with a code lower than 0603850 are usually Advanced Development.

- (03) Demonstration/Validation. The demonstration and validation (Dem/Val) phase, includes all efforts necessary to evaluate integrated technologies in as realistic an operating environment as possible to assess the performance or cost reduction potential of advanced technology. The Dem/Val phase is system specific and also includes advanced technology demonstrations that help expedite technology transition from the laboratory to operational use. Program Elements in this category would involve efforts between Milestone One and Milestone Two. A logical progression of program phases and funding (development and/or production) must be evident. Program elements with a code ranging from 0603850 to 0603999 are usually Demonstration/Validation.

- (04)Engineering Development. Includes those projects in engineering and manufacturing development for Service use but which have not received approval for full-rate production. This area is characterized by major line item projects and program control will be exercised by the review of individual projects. Engineering Development includes engineering and manufacturing development projects. Program Elements in this category would involve efforts between Milestone Two and Milestone Three.
- (05) Management and Support. Includes research and development effort directed toward support of installations or operations required for general research and development use. Included would be test ranges, and military construction maintenance support of laboratories, operations and maintenance of test aircraft and ships and studies and analyses in support of the R&D program. Costs of laboratory personnel, either in house or contractor operated, would be assigned to appropriate projects or as a line item in the Research, Exploratory Development, or Advanced Development program areas, as appropriate. Military construction costs directly related to a major development program will be included in the appropriate element.

Several rules regulate the manner in which FYDP resources are allocated to FYDP programs.

The fundamental rules are: 1) Every FYDP resource must be assigned uniquely to one FYDP program element. 2) The sum of a resource type over all FYDP program elements, for a given fiscal year, must equal the total of that type of FYDP resources in the DoD program for that fiscal year. "Control totals," especially for types of TOA and manpower resources, established externally to the FYDP, must be satisfied by the published FYDP database. In particular, the U.S. Congress requires that the published President's Budget FYDP be consistent with the concurrent DoD President's Budget.

The responsibility for assigning FYDP resources to FYDP programs rests with the Component to which the resources are assigned. The Department's aggregate TOA and manpower resources are regulated by the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and the office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Personnel and Readiness), respectively. It is these offices that determine their categories, their control totals, and other key factors. The FYDP structure management process is used to keep FYDP resource categories consistent with OUSD(C) and OUSD(P&R) policies.

Within the FYDP itself, certain interrelationships must be followed between resources and programs. By major resource category, these relationships are:

1. TOA Relationships to FYDP Programs (by Major Appropriation)

Military Personnel (MilPers)

TOA resources in the MilPers budget title are to be applied to program elements, according to standard average costs for pay and other expenses, by military manpower category, pro rata to the number of personnel of that type in each program element. [As of the February 1998 President's Budget FYDP, the MilPers resources in each program element are calculated in various ways by the Military Departments (and by other DoD Components who receive military personnel as resources for their programs). Efforts are underway to simplify and standardize the allocation of MilPers TOA to FYDP Program Elements.]

Operation and Maintenance (O&M)

Several methodologies are used to allocate O&M TOA resources to program elements.

- Force-related O&M TOA is to be applied according to workload requirements (such as flying or steaming hours or schedules) of force units within each program element.

- O&M TOA for reserve components are assigned to those known requirements in specific program elements and the balance is applied according to manpower end strengths.
- Supply and maintenance O&M TOA is usually identified according to a number of workload measures and programmed equipment utilization rates.
- In the Navy, O&M TOA for aircraft rework is handled differently from that for ship overhaul. Most of the Navy's centrally managed maintenance TOA is identified in Program 7. Aircraft rework falls in this category. Ship overhaul and other maintenance, on the other hand, is managed by the fleet commanders and are therefore in Programs 1 and 2.
- Training O&M TOA, in Program 8, is based on training load requirements for projected mission needs. Unit training O&M TOA of the major mission programs is identified by force requirements.
- Medical O&M TOA is allocated to medical program elements in Program 8, based on a medical workload factor.

Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation (RDT&E)

R&D project costs are recorded in the OUSD(Comptroller)(Program/Budget) RDT&E Program, a budget information system (formerly called the RDT&E Annex (to the FYDP)). In general, RDT&E resources in the FYDP conform to the RDT&E Program. RDT&E TOA normally aggregates directly into individually managed program elements; however, certain overhead costs may be spread across all projects when they cannot be related directly to a specific project, or accumulated in management and support program elements.

Procurement

Procurement TOA costs are recorded in the OUSD(Comptroller)(Program/Budget) Procurement Program, a budget information system (formerly called the Procurement Annex (to the FYDP)). Procurement TOA is allocated to program elements by one of the following methods:

- Procurement line items representing major weapon systems are directly associated with the appropriate program element or elements in accordance with the mission or missions assigned to the weapon system. Unit-related items are associated with program elements according to algorithms that identify units, their relative wartime deployment priority, the equipment authorizations for each unit, the worldwide asset position for equipment items, projected loss rates and the authorized acquisition objective for those items. A mathematical distribution is made to the program element based on these factors.
- Some items are based on historical distribution of identical or similar items being replaced.

- Some support Procurement TOA, such as procurement of automobiles and some utility aircraft, is allocated to base operations program elements in accordance with type and size of mission being supported.
- In some cases, particularly in the Navy, summary program elements are used to accumulate procurement TOA to avoid an arbitrary allocation.

Military Construction

When a construction project is identified, the FYDP major program of the dominant user is determined. As the project moves through the review and approval process, a specific program element is determined and assigned.

Military Manpower.

Military manpower is enumerated in end strength, as of the end of the fiscal year for which resources are recorded in the FYDP. End strengths are normally aggregated directly into program elements based on the program element identification of each unit. Unstructured spaces (trainees, transients, patients, prisoners, and students) are computed based on anticipated gains and losses and authorizations for units in all FYDP programs.

Civilian Manpower

Civilian manpower is enumerated in the FYDP, for FY 1996 and afterward, in workyears of Full Time Equivalent (FTE) employees. The OUSD(P&R) is the authority for defining and measuring FTE in the Department of Defense. Civilian manpower is aggregated directly into program elements based on unit/program element relationships.

3. Forces Relationships to FYDP Programs

With few exceptions, Forces data for the FYDP is restricted to program elements in the six FYDP Major Programs for combat forces. The allowable exceptions include equipment (such as specialized aircraft) for certain support missions such as medical programs (medical evacuation aircraft) and training programs (undergraduate pilot training aircraft).

Section Three: Use of the FYDP

DoD Instruction 7045.7 requires that decisions from the Planning, Programming, and Budgeting System process be recorded in the FYDP. The FYDP is used extensively as a database for many related processes, both internal and external to the Department of Defense. Within the Department, the FYDP supports PPBS activities, is an operating tool of the DoD manager, and is a source of data for analysis and as an input to alternative ways of displaying and portraying actual and programmed resources. External DoD uses of the FYDP include analyses supporting the Secretary's Annual Report to the Congress.

Although the data structure (also known as the "metadata") of the FYDP is unclassified and is authorized for public release, the FYDP data itself are classified and the FYDP's use is tightly restricted. The main considerations are:

- Data in the FYDP generally is considered to be DoD Planning, Programming, and Budgeting System (PPBS) information, and is internal working material of the Department. As such, this information is subject to restrictions regardless of its security classification. Non-DoD personnel must get individual clearance to obtain access to FYDP or to other PPBS data. FYDP out-year program data, in particular, reflect DoD's internal planning assumptions. FYDP data beyond the budget year is not releasable outside DoD without the express written consent of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), or as specifically provided by US law. The PA&E POC for questions about access to the FYDP is Jane Overslaugh, (703) 693-7827, DSN 223-7827, overslaj@paesmtp.pae.osd.mil.

- Resources of special programs recorded in the FYDP (such as intelligence programs), and certain resource aggregations containing special programs' resources, are classified when published and remain classified for an extended period. This applies to previous editions of the FYDP, and to FYDP data for fiscal years that have long since passed. For some programs, the FYDP resource data for FY 1962 (the first year of data recorded in the FYDP) are still classified! The FYDP does not currently have data-record-level classification information. Therefore, all FYDP data and FYDP data aggregations (other than a few high-level aggregations prepared by OSD(PA&E) in advance as unclassified) must be treated as classified until determined otherwise. The PA&E POC for questions about FYDP data classification is Jerry Pannullo, (703) 693-7827, DSN 223-7827, pannullo@paesmtp.pae.osd.mil.

By statutory requirement, the President's Budget publication of: the FYDP, the OUSD(Comptroller) Procurement Program, and the OUSD(Comptroller) RDT&E Program, all containing the prior, current, and four out-years, are provided to various Congressional oversight committee staffs and the Congressional Budget Office (CBO). The CBO has developed a Defense Resource Model (DRM) for use as an analytical tool in support of alternative levels of defense resources. Following the budget submission to Congress, budget year data are extracted from the FYDP according to CBO specifications, which aggregate program elements and resource identification codes to unclassified summary levels for input to the DRM. Data from the DRM are used by CBO to fulfill the legal requirement for mission-oriented displays under P.L. 93-344 (reference (b)).

Emphasis will be placed on simulation and analysis to model current and developing third world capabilities. Actual war-fighting doctrine using C4I data and nodes will be modeled to better refine mission requirements. Ongoing material improvements to existing hardware can be made based on Desert Storm and modeling done to date. Future material solutions must cover all "pillars" of Theater Missile Defense - (Attack Operations, Active Defense, Passive Defense, and C4I). Opportunities to destroy missiles before, during, and after launch require analysis in material improvements for each pillar to ensure proper protection measures are achieved.

Includes manpower authorizations and related costs and resources identified to the following:

The DOD National Airspace System upgrade ensures the compatibility of the DOD air traffic control system with the Federal Aviation Administration's (FAA) National Airspace System. Vital flight information that must pass between DOD and FAA facilities depends on DOD upgrade from analog to digital systems. The digital system is expected to double controller productivity while significantly reducing system maintenance costs through increased system reliability. This effort will facilitate DOD unique training missions and special use airspace management through the Military Airspace Management System. Designed to capture cost savings through common depot support and training. Constructs/modifies approximately 22 air traffic control facilities. Provides for equipment procurement and installation. Failure to remain compatible with the FAA will result in excessive flight delays, more difficult access to special use airspace, or possibly the loss of some special use airspace.

Includes funds for the Inertial Upper Stage procurement, research, development and test, and operations and maintenance. The IUS program provides consolidated acquisition of the IUS to support the DoD Mission Model. This effort includes flight operations at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, Florida, and support to flight operations at the Consolidated Space Test Center (CSTC). IUS supports the launch of Defense Support Program (DSP) satellites. IUS is one type of upper stage on a Titan IV (or it can be modified for the Space Shuttle Program) and takes the DSP satellite from the Titan IV low earth orbit to its mission orbit. The operations and support program continuously evaluates and improves IUS reliability, cost effectiveness, and responsiveness.
